Product Recalls simplifies the product safety space – it allows you to quickly find, access and share what products are being recalled and find out what you need to do when you have a recalled product. By keeping up to date with recalls you can help protect yourself, your family and friends from unsafe products.

For business, Product Recalls can help you connect with best practice recall guidance to help you look after your customers safety and meet your legal requirements.

Product Recalls also provides your business with a government channel to get recall information to your customers and can help reduce the costs associated with recalling products.

This site lets you get information on recalls of vehicles, medicines and general goods (including everyday household items, tools and equipment) and connects to the Ministry of Primary Industries' website for information and updates on food recalls.

Product Recalls gives you access to recall information from multiple government departments, so you don't miss them.
